

Werner Heisenberg, a German theoretical physicist who was one of the key pioneers of quantum mechanics once stated "The first gulp from the glass of natural sciences will turn you into an atheist, but at the bottom of the glass God is waiting for you". Some of us look at the world around us and have decided that the origin for all we see is finite. Further scientific discoveries seem to point more and more that creation has a finely tuned design, and less and less random chance. The evidence for creation as a result of a creator rather than "chance" is very compelling.

The Easter season is upon us again and that can bring many things to mind. Some see it as the time of the year where the weather is nicer and new life shows in nature. Many might see it as an opportunity to spend quality time with friends and/or family. For others of us, we remember that out of love, God came to earth as a man to pay the price for all we have done wrong and failed to do. Now every culture and people group around world can choose to have life to the fullest on this earth and eternity afterwards.

Many of us know the story of the centurion who was at the foot of the cross where Jesus died. After observation of Jesus's life, trial, and death the centurion made this authoritative decision: "Surely he was the Son of God!" This was a statement that his men and others must have heard, only adding to their amazement. That day, history split into two and God began to present the question and choice to every human: "But what about you... Who do you say that I am?" (Matt. 16:15)
